Practice Description:

Arizona Kidney Disease & Hypertension Centers (AKDHC) is one of the nation's largest private nephrology practices, established in 1978. As of January 2026, the group includes 108 adult nephrologists providing care across Arizona.

The practice is organized into sector-based teams that operate with a high degree of autonomy, allowing physicians to work in smaller, collegial groups while benefiting from the resources and infrastructure of a large organization. Transparency and communication are central to the model, with information shared across all physicians regardless of partnership status. Key decisions are made by majority vote.

AKDHC operates under a "common pot" structure, where revenues are shared across the organization, including physician services, medical director agreements, research, interventional/surgical vascular access programs, and real estate investments.

The group offers a competitive, escalating salary model, a five-year partnership track, generous vacation time, and a comprehensive benefits package.
